We™ve been hearing from our educator community that it™s simply not enough to have occasional conversations about safety and digital civility and that they™d greatly benefit from a structured curriculum and project-based learning as the new school year begins and kids are spending more and more time learning and interacting with one another online, said Laura Higgins, Director of Community Safety and Digital Civility at ROBLOX. The curriculum launching today is designed to provide both educators and students with a self-paced, topic-specific narrative that will help build a generation of resilient digital citizens and ensure kids and teens have positive and safe online experiences.

ROBLOX has come a long way from the clunky, blocky characters and difficult user interface of its past and now serves as a global gaming and game development and programming platform, with hundreds of thousands of games available from dedicated, young creators. While ROBLOX itself is free-to-play, and many games don't require players to use real-world currency or the in-game ROBUX, some games include purchasable items, add-ons, and other microtransactions like game passes. For players who don't want to spend real money on such microtransactions, there is still so much great free content available.
